

Contents

Acknowledgments

Abbreviations

Introduction

The Distinction and the Story
The Roles of Public Opinion
The Expressions of Popular Sovereignty
Making Sense of the History of Democracy
Making Sense of the History of Liberalism
Chapter Outline

1. Rousseau's Democracy

The Political Debate in Geneva
The Letter to d'Alembert: Introducing the Genevan Circles
The Social Contract: A Silent Sovereign Amidst Vocal Circles
The Letters from the Mountain: The Sleepless People
England: Delegated Sovereignty and the Public Voice
Poland: Federalized Sovereignty
“Public Esteem” and Graduated Promotion
Rousseau's Legacy

2. Representative Democracy during the French Revolution

Condorcet's Elite-Shaped Public Opinion
Towards Direct Popular Sovereignty
Condorcet's Representative Democracy (February 1793)
Robespierre's Club-Based Public Opinion
Robespierre's Representative Democracy (April-May 1793)
The Montagnard Constitution (June 1793)
The Convention's Two Powers

3. The Liberal Response: Madame de Staël and Representative Government

Representative Democracy Revived: The Neo-Jacobins
Madame de Staël: Introducing Ancient and Modern Liberty
Sismondi: Public Opinion and the Rule of the Elite
Benjamin Constant: Ancient and Modern Liberty Revisited
Representative Democracy Before and After Representative Government

4. Bonaparte and his Collaborators: “Democracy Purged of All its Drawbacks”

1799-1800: Hybrid Popular Sovereignty
From Representative Democracy to Purified Democracy
1802: Plebiscitary Sovereignty
Bonaparte as Rousseauist Legislator: Government-Led Public Opinion
The Council of State and the Making of Laws
“King of the People”: The Plebiscite of 1804
The Emperor’s Two Powers

5. The Liberal Response: Benjamin Constant’s Representative Government

Redefining or Rejecting Popular Sovereignty?
De Facto Sovereignty and the General Will
Two Principles of Legitimacy
Constitution-Making without Formal Popular Ratification
The Plebiscite of 1815
“The Government of Opinion”
The Second Restoration: Visions of Government by Opinion
Legitimacy and European Civilization: The Conquest of Algiers
The Nation’s Wish Returns: The July Revolution

6. Tocqueville’s Democracy

Orleanist Liberalism (1): National Sovereignty
Orleanist Liberalism (2): Public Opinion, Expression of a Democratic Society
Tocqueville’s Response: The Limits of Government by Opinion
Framing Democratic Society
Divided Popular Sovereignty
The Township: Rousseau in America
“Town Spirit” and “Public Spirit”
French Roads to Glory: Algeria and Great Parties

7. The First Theorists of Liberal Democracy

Louis-Napoleon: “Personified Democracy”
The 1860s: Designing French Liberalism
Liberal Democracy as Rule by Public Opinion
Constant and Tocqueville, Fathers of Liberal Democracy
John Stuart Mill, Ally of Liberal Democracy
Liberal Democracy versus “Colonial Caesarism”
The Liberal Empire and the Plebiscite of 1870

The Eclipse of Liberal Democracy

Epilogue: Liberal Democracy in the Twentieth Century

From Caesarism to Totalitarianism: Raymond Aron

Aron's Liberal Democracy: Framing the Demands of the Masses

From Totalitarianism to Populism: Claude Lefort

Lefort's Liberal Democracy: A Conflictual Public Space

Liquefying Popular Sovereignty: Habermas, Rosanvallon, Urbinati

Rule By Opinion Versus Democracy

Bibliography

Index