

The People's Two Powers:
Public Opinion and Popular Sovereignty
from Rousseau to Liberal Democracy

Book Manuscript

Arthur Ghins
King's College London

Table of Contents

Introduction (p. 4)

- The Distinction: Two Expressions of Popular Power Beyond Elections (p. 6)
- The Story: from Representative Democracy to Liberal Democracy (p. 10)
- Making Sense of the History of Democracy (p. 15)
- Making Sense of the History of Liberalism (p. 23)
- Chapter Outline: from Geneva to America, via France (p. 28)

1. Rousseau's Genevan Democracy (p. 33)

- The Political Debate in Geneva (p. 35)
- Rousseau's Genevan Democracy, from the Letter to d'Alembert to The Social Contract (p. 38)
- The Letters from the Mountain*: Awakening the Genevan People (p. 45)
- Public Esteem: Nominating, Reviewing, and Revoking Magistrates (p. 53)
- England: Delegated Sovereignty and the Public Voice (p. 63)
- Poland: Federalized Sovereignty and Gradated Promotion (p. 67)
- Rousseau's Legacy (p. 72)

2. Representative Democracy during the French Revolution (p. 75)

- Condorcet's Elite-Shaped Public Opinion (p. 78)
- February 1793: Condorcet's Representative Democracy (p. 86)
- Robespierre's Club-Based Public Opinion (p. 93)
- April-May 1793: Robespierre's Representative Democracy (p. 99)
- The Montagnard Constitution (June 1793): Representative Democracy Redefined (p. 105)
- The Convention's Two Powers (p. 112)

3. Bonaparte and his Acolytes: "Democracy Purged of All its Drawbacks" (p. 116)

- 1799-1801: Hybrid Popular Sovereignty (p. 119)
- 1802: Plebiscitary Sovereignty (p. 128)
- Bonaparte as Legislator: Government-Led Public Opinion (p. 132)
- The Council of State and the Making of Laws (p. 138)
- Silent Public Esteem (p. 143)
- "King of the People": the Plebiscite of 1804 (p. 148)
- The Emperor's Two Powers (p. 152)

4. Rejecting Popular Sovereignty: Benjamin Constant's Government by Opinion (p. 159)

- Constitutional Legitimacy Without Popular Sovereignty (p. 163)

Interpreting the Nation's Wish: from the Hundred Days to the Second Restoration (p. 170)
Popular Power as Influence: The Lecture on Ancient and Modern Liberty (1819) (p. 176)
Public Opinion, "Queen of Representative Government" (p. 181)
Moral Electricity and "Responsibility of Opinion" (p. 191)
1815-1830: Liberal Visions of Government by Opinion (p. 195)
The Nation's Wish Returns: the July Revolution (p. 199)

5. Rehabilitating Popular Sovereignty: Tocqueville's Federal Democracy (p. 204)

Montagnard Democracy Revisited (p. 206)
Liberal Moves: National Sovereignty and Democratic Society (p. 210)
Tocqueville's Response: Government by Opinion, Government by Mediocrity (p. 216)
Framing Democratic Society: Aristocratic and Democratic Solutions (p. 222)
Divided Popular Sovereignty (p. 228)
The Township: Geneva in America (p. 236)

6. After Tocqueville: Inventing Liberal Democracy (p. 242)

1848 and its Aftermath: Direct Government versus Personified Democracy (p. 244)
The 1860s: Designing French liberalism (p. 251)
Government by Opinion Becomes Liberal Democracy (p. 257)
Creating the French Liberal Tradition (p. 263)
After the Second Empire: Liberal Democracy and the Founding of Sciences Po (p. 268)
Representative Democracy is Liberal Democracy (p. 276)
The 1930s: Liberal Democracy Without Popular Sovereignty (p. 282)

Epilogue: How Popular Sovereignty Was Redefined, from the Cold War to Today (p. 288)

Liquifying Popular Sovereignty: Habermas' Revision of Koselleck (p. 292)
Popular Sovereignty and the Empty Place of Power:
Postwar Antitotalitarian French Thought (p. 295)
The American Representative and Constructive Turns (p. 303)
Representative Democracy versus Liberal Democracy (p. 309)
Shape-Shifting Democracy (p. 313)